

ARMSTRONG TEASDALE OPENS ILLINOIS OFFICE

FIRM FORGES AHEAD DURING PANDEMIC, PLANTS A FLAG IN EDWARDSVILLE

Armstrong Teasdale announces that it has opened an office in Edwardsville, Illinois. In the past two years, the firm has expanded its geographic footprint significantly, hiring more than 80 attorneys and staff, and opening five new offices across the country in addition to Edwardsville.

“We already serve a wide range of clients throughout the state of Illinois, and this natural extension allows us to better serve our clients in the metropolitan region,” said Managing Partner David Braswell. “We look forward to the new opportunities this location will afford us, and we are grateful to have the opportunity to invest in the region during this challenging time.”

With attorneys licensed across the country, Armstrong Teasdale serves a wide range of clients from coast to coast. In April and May respectively, Armstrong Teasdale announced that it is establishing a presence in both Salt Lake City and Boston.

The firm’s attorneys regularly do business in and have roots in Illinois. Armstrong Teasdale’s robust team of attorneys includes former judges and clerks from Southern Illinois with decades of combined experience.

“Southern Illinois venues are known for attracting significant and often challenging litigation,” said Partner Don Flack, a former judge in Madison County, Illinois. “Our experience there, paired with our new physical presence, will certainly benefit clients across the firm.”

Flack, Partner Untress Quinn and a number of other attorneys and professional staff will occupy the full-service Edwardsville office, providing trusted counsel with a particular focus on complex commercial litigation, asbestos litigation, medical malpractice and intellectual property. The office is located at 115 North Second Street.
