John Sten has over 25 years of corporate, securities and white-collar criminal defense experience. He began his distinguished career as a member of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) Summer Honors Program before being selected to begin his legal career in the SEC Division of Enforcement in Washington, D.C. At heart, John advises about, and successfully solves, the problems faced by his clients: regulatory, litigation-related or just day-to-day corporate issues – whatever they are and wherever in the world they may occur. As such, John also serves as outside general counsel and corporate secretary to a select number of clients.

John represents officers, directors, boards and companies in high-stakes matters involving negligence and fraud, the False Claims Act, securities, health care, public corruption and other matters at the federal, state and local levels, as well as by government regulators. He also conducts internal investigations for his clients, counsels them on remediation and corporate governance issues, and routinely handles all manner of other complex civil litigation issues.

BACKGROUND

Prior to joining Armstrong Teasdale, John spent more than 20 years in private practice at other Boston and New England area law firms. Before that, he was a Enforcement Attorney in the SEC's home office in Washington D.C. Although John has successfully won many cases by way of motion to dismiss, summary judgment or before a judge via a bench trial, he is one of the few defense attorneys to successfully try a case in front of a jury against the SEC.
