Katherine Vojas focuses her practice on litigation and defending major hospitals, doctors, nurses and other professionals against claims of medical malpractice. A member of the firm's award-winning Mass Tort and Catastrophic Loss practice area, she also defends clients in litigation alleging catastrophic injuries as a result of product liability and premises liability.

Katie works with clients in every stage of litigation, spanning state and federal jurisdictions. She formulates defense strategies, motion procedures, discovery processes, settlement negotiations, trial proceedings and appeals. Katie regularly conducts depositions for both fact and expert witnesses. She is also skilled in the seamless management and coordination of intricate litigation matters on behalf of clients.

Katie has appeared in various Illinois and Missouri state courts and has tried two cases to verdict in the City of St. Louis.

BACKGROUND

Prior to joining Armstrong Teasdale, Katie was a litigation associate at a midsize St. Louis law firm. She also previously served as a law clerk at a St. Louis personal injury law firm.

EXPERIENCE

Defense Verdict for University Client in St. Louis City Medical Negligence Trial

Secured a defense verdict for health care clients in the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis. The case involved claims of academic medical practice and allegations that the Department of Ophthalmology failed to timely diagnose and treat a retinal detachment in a severely autistic, nonverbal adult. The defendants denied the allegations and asserted at trial that they were unable to perform a complete eye examination and the presenting complaint of "red eye" did not require further testing such as an examination under anesthesia to examine the back of the eye. The defendants also presented evidence that the retinal detachment ultimately diagnosed about three and half months later was an old injury that had been present for at least a year or possibly years. After a week-long trial where plaintiffs requested nearly $5 million, the St. Louis City jury deliberated for 30 minutes before rendering its decision in favor of the defendants.
