Marc Soble is Armstrong Teasdale's chief financial officer. He has more than 25 years of experience in the professional services industry, including substantial time in both client serving and support capacities. In his role as CFO, Marc identifies opportunities and drives plans for continued growth and productivity. He also works firmwide to assess risk and strategically plan for the firm's future.

In his past roles, Marc assisted senior leadership with developing and understanding the drivers of financial performance as well as providing advice on improving future results. Marc directed the implementation of enterprise-wide systems and processes that provided users across all parts of the organization with visibility to relevant financial metrics.

Active in firm leadership, Marc serves on the Strategic Planning Committee and as an ex-officio member of the Executive Committee.

BACKGROUND

Prior to joining Armstrong Teasdale, Marc served as global director of financial planning and analysis at a global law firm based in Chicago, responsible for financial accounting, enterprise-wide budgeting, and financial KPI reporting across all segments of the business. Before that, he was a director at a Big Four consulting firm, focused on large-scale client systems implementations and various internal financial and operational functions.
