Molly Thomas is one of Armstrong Teasdale's most experienced paralegals, serving the firm's Litigation practice group. During this time, she has developed a strong background in employment and labor law.

Employment/Labor Law

In the complex and rapidly evolving world of employment and labor, Molly is an integral part of the legal research, trial preparation process and case strategy. Her broad range of responsibilities includes conducting background research, collecting records, expert witness preparation, written discovery and case management. She also drafts pleadings and aids in document production for cases in both state and federal court. Molly offers attorneys in-depth knowledge on how to use high-quality litigation technology services to bring exhibits and demonstrative evidence to life for depositions and trial.
