Pamela Winter, a senior associate in Armstrong Teasdale's Kansas City office, has been selected for the 2024 Kansas Emerging Leaders program. She is one of 20 individuals selected to participate in the statewide program designed to enhance and motivate young leaders.

The program, an initiative of Leadership Kansas, provides leadership training and mentorship opportunities and empowers participants to build a network with fellow Kansans committed to the state's success. Through five monthly sessions held across the state, participants learn more about topics important to Kansans and become better equipped for leadership responsibilities in their careers and communities.

Winter, a member of the firm's Litigation practice group, handles a variety of civil litigation matters, including catastrophic and personal injury, medical malpractice, transportation, premises and retail liability, and construction defects. She is a skillful advocate for her clients practicing in both state and federal court.
